WOMAN IN HER WORK AND LEISURE-PRACTICAL ARTICLES. FASHIONS AND IDEAS

The life of the nurse on board the hospital ship running between the Continent and Great Britain is thrilling in its ad- soul, as he was terribly smashed up. venture. At any moment during the panenge across, a mine may be struck, and the ship, nurses and wounded men blown futo a million pieces. I have just received an interesting letter from an English nurse who is acting as slater on board the English boat, the Oxfordshire, of the Bibby Line. The Orfordshire has been turned into a hosnital ship and runs between the Continent and Great Britain, carrying hundrads of wounded men home to hospital and friends.

"My present life is thrilling in the exfreme." writes the nurse. "I just feel actually out at sea. that up to the present time I have never now, and am enjoying it all immensely. although we are running very great risks of being blown to atoms. At any time

"I am doing night duty, and you canfirst it was the most 'creepy' sensation to getting them now to the full!" go around the ward with my little lantern. Not that I felt nervous, one feels so fresilfully sorry for the poor fellows that one has no nerves at all, but

"Lights have to be out at 10 o'clock every night, and so we just work among wounded in the dark. I make my rounds with a tiny lantern, bending over each cot and throwing the light on the patient's face to watch for sudden collapse or any change. Most of them are pretty bad cases, and there they lie, moaning and calling.

"At first it was terribly cerie. You syringe there, giving a quick restorative see, lots of them are delirious and get to the dying, and watching for that out of bed. It is a queer sensation to curious gray look which betokens a fallhear a pattering of feet behind you in ing heart. the darkness and to hear the breathing and panting of some poor wounded fellow, knowing, as you do, that he is not she wishes that she had 20 pairs of hands responsible for his actions. The first and feet to answer all the calls and cries. time that happened I did feel a little bif nervous, I confess it. If I could in her bravery. have seen where my patient was, 'I

The Gift for Mother

Two girls were sitting in the window

er warm, woolly bedroom allppers, money,

Small Gifts for Christmas

Small, inexpensive home-made gifts are such to be preferred to the everlasting

Cards cost from 10 cents to whatever suggestion for the bathroom is a back not be greater than for one, with the tion of the bone rings; and the total of three straps need not be more

Christman cards, which accumulate rapidly and usually find their way into the

The herolem of women during the pres- I shouldn't have minded-but then, you ent war frequently passes unnoticed, but see, I couldn't locate him, at first as gallant actions are being performed in the darkness of the place, and he fally by them as any on the actual field kept wandering around, muttering and hand, and I know what I'm talking talking, till I got hold of him and about, even if I am a Spinster." persuaded him to go back to bed. He was in no state to get out of bed, poor

"We have an orderly to each ward, of course, but working in the dark is a difficult business. Of course, we cannot show a light, so one makes the best of it. Six nurses to 700 wounded men means believe that Ida, for instance, is the busy work all the time.

"My boat has been to St. Nazar, Havre and Boulogne for the wounded, and has taken them to Queenstown, Ireland, to Dublin, but mostly to Southampton. Next time we will probably go as far as Scotland calling at Glasgow. We never know where we are going till the last moment, and often don't get orders till

"We carry wounded Germans, too, and truly lived! But, indeed, I am living they get on excellently with the English selfishness refuses that test. I think my and the French. It is most amusing to pocketbook is my own affair, and a see the great friendships struck up between the English and the French we may strike a mine or he torpedoed by soldlers, for they cannot understand each the Germans or be fired upon by their other's talk! The gesticulating that goes on is ludicrous! "The colonel in charge of us nurses not picture what it is like. Imagine six of is exceedingly kind and nice. I am havus nurses atending in darkness to 700 ing a splendid time and my only fear is wounded men, a great part of whom are that I may be transferred to shore duty! quite delirious and are muttering and Hard work and exciting work are the two heart so long. I'd never miss the wallet. mouning somewhere in the depths! At things I enjoy best, and, indeed, I am

A letter such as this brings home to one the horrors and the hardships of war. Certainly there is an excitement in the nurse's work, but the strain must be tremendous. The night work in particular must be very hard for any woman. The anxiety and the responsibility are immense-yet these nurses glory in the work. Imagine working among hundreds of wounded and delirious men in the darkness. Carrying her small lantern and groping from cot to cot, the nurse hurries from one poor soul to another, feeling a pulse here, applying the morphia

"Water, water, nurse," comes echolog from every dark corner, and many time Truly the nurse on board the hospital ship is heroic and utterly self-forgetful

ELLEN ADAIR.

The Spinster and Bachelor

Discuss Matrimony is that you can be supremely selfish and get away with It," said the bachelor, as he lighted his pipe and lounged in his easy chair "It's nothing of the kind," retorted the Spinster, "because you don't know anything about it."

"How do you know whether I do or not? When Betty was engaged last year I made a great many observations," returned the Bachelor.

"Well, I got my experience at first

"Well, what is your candid opinion? Tell the truth! Don't you think engaged couples are the most selfish people on earth?" snorted the Bachelor.

"Not at all, they're just blizefully unconscious," said the Spinster. "It's only because you are too selfish yourself to aweetest, prettlest, most perfect woman In the world.

"Why Ida?" asked the Bachelor, dryly. 'I never indulge in superlatives."

"Well, you go around to see her often enough. Besides, we were talking about your colorsal selfishness. You are so selfish you won't let a woman have any real claim on your time, or your affections, or your pocketbook."

"I should say not," grunted the bachelor." I must admit my colossal woman ought to keep out."

"And sit by and meekly accept the weekly dole from your your selfish highness. No, thank you!"

"I hadn't noticed that you were invited, my dear," returned the brute. Then, seeing her furious expression, he added, "But you can have anything of mine you want, Ellen. You've had my You highway-robbed me long ago. You're the daintiest, cutest, most in-

"I thought you never indulged in superintives?" said the Spinster, but the look on her face was a very happy one.

For the Housewife

Remember that the success of frying depends upon two things-having enough fat to completely cover the article cooked in it, and having the fat smoking hot.

There is an erroneous impression that water bubbling violently is hotter than water at the boiling point. As a matter of fact, the ebuilition is caused by the escaping steam, which means lost heat. All water (except in a high elevation) reaches the boiling point at 212 degrees, and however fast or slow the water may have the steam of the transfer of the temperature. be boiling it remains at that temperature. To increase the heat, add sugar or sait or confine the steam by covering the pot.

Meats for broiling should be cut very Meats for broiling should be cut very thin and turned over a clear, hot fire as often as one counts 10. When the puffed appearance of broiled meat be-gins to disappear it means that the moisture is evaporating and the meat ought and paid for, the little frock illustrated would make a good model to copy for wear as a school dress. The skirt is cut straight and plaited. Plaiting of this kind is done not only by

The little waist has plaits, back and dren is very much greater than those that are made at home. It, perhaps, de-that are made at home. It, perhaps, depends upon the value one places upon one's ewn time and labor.

Certainly the materials used by the shops nowadays are of a quality sufficiently good for everyday purposes. The difference in the cost to the individual

The cotton panic has somewhat sub-sided. With the display of frecks made of various cottons at the recent Cotton Show at Washington it was demonstrated that the fabrics made of this material in the United States compare favorably with those of European manufacture. The freck pictured need not be a warm one. As a model for a freck of cham-bray or linen it would serve quite as well. The difference in the cost to the individual at the retail price sometimes approximates the amount allowed by the shop If the material is at hand, already

Many women prefer to dress their chil-

Wash frocks have much in their favor The little waist has plaits, back and front, that start from the shoulders and disappear under the wide belt. The width of the belt is something of a novelty where children's clothes are concerned, and the pockets are the latest edict of fashion.

Prickets, even of this size, are extremely practical for children. They would held carfare and a handkerchief and button.

Prehaps all things would eventually be

A SMART LITTLE FROCK FOR THE SCHOOLGIRL MODES OF THE HOUR It is a mapt question whether the able made in one of the pretty dark cost of the ready-made clothes for chil- shades of corduroy in blue or green or brown. Corduroy is not only fashionable this the shops that make a specialty of such things, but also by the department stores at a low figure.

dren in linen or cotton up to the last moment. It seems to keep them children a little longer and to postpone the inevitable hour of their independence.

arfare and a handkerchief and button

arfare and a handkerchief and button

Perhaps all things would eventually be equal if one simply followed one's own choice and inclination.

TO TELEPHONE GIRLS

The girl who works and wishes to make good must of necessity take great care of her health. In telephone work, there is a certain danger of eyestrain. This can be reduced to a minimum by proper care of the eyes. Reading when lying down is very injurious to the eyesight. So also is reading in train or trolley car.

During her "relief" time, the telephone girl should rest comfortably in a deep chair, relax all the muscles and close her eyes. She will return to her work feeling invigorated and refreshed. Proper care of the health repays one in the long run.

ELLEN ADAIR. one in the long run.

AT THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY EXCHANGE

phone Company is liaving the best care and attention, be sure of that. Real thoughtfulness is shown for all employes, and everything is done to avoid overwork and to lessen strain.

The surroundings in which a girl works fresh air, kindly supervisors and ready fresh air, kindly supervisors and ready co-operation make all the difference in the world to the telephone girl. And all the difference in the world to the telephone girl. And all 2." these are to be found up at the pleasant offices of the Bell Telephone Company.

There is a foolish idea prevalent among many people that the telephone girl has a very slack time of it; that she lolls back in her chair and chats idly with her neighbor on either side, and that she deliberately informs subscribers that the "Line is busy," when in reality the ad-jective only applies to the clatter of her Bell Telephone Company will soon refute this idea, utterly, and to those who are ignorant of the telephone girl's life and work I would strongly recommend a visit to the above-mentioned offices.

The greatest care is taken that none of

The girl who works for the Bell Tele- magazines are provided for the entertainment of the girls.

There is a cheerful restaurant, too, where tea, coffee and milk are served to the girls free of charge, other articles of food being sold at cost price. "We take good care of our employes," said the manager, "and are constantly thinking up ways to promote their comreally make or mar her happiness, and also greatly affect her working capacity. A cheerful atmosphere, plenty of good.

A cheerful atmosphere, plenty of good.

"Do many girls apply for positions as telephone operators here?"
"Oh, yes," was the quick response, "we have a great number of applicants, so many that we have to do a good deal of weeding-out. Having selected the most promising of the applicants, we send them to our training school for four weeks. During that time they go through a preity comprehensive routine and them jective only applies to the clatter of her own tongue. A visit to the offices of the Bell Telephone Company will soon refute this idea, utterly, and to those who are drop out."

"Do many drop out?"
"Well," said the manager slowly, "we really only want efficient people, so wa The greatest care is taken that none of the employes is overworked, and if a girl is dealing with numbers in a district crowded with business offices she has fewer numbers on her board than the girl who is dealing with a residential locality. "Relief" time is religiously adhered to, and a girl has two sets of reliefs each there's a will there where the constant the constant there were the constant the const fewer numbers on her board than the girl who is dealing with a residential locality. 'don't-care' spirit are the ones who gen-who is dealing with a residential locality. 'don't-care' spirit are the ones who gen-who is a religiously adhered to, erally fail to be graduated. Where and a girl has two sets of reliefs each there's a will there's a way, you know, and the girl who wishes to succeed will day. The restroom is a delightful place, and the girl who wishes to succeed will filled with inviting couches and deep make her way to the front sooner or easy-chairs, while the newest books and later."

The 'Phone on Xmas Day

Christmas.

her neighbor.

wouldn't be so busy."

The telephone girls were talking about

"What are you going to get for Christmas, Anna?" asked a dark-haired girl of

"I den't know, I'm so discouraged. I have to go on in the very first shift, and work most of the time. That's a fine way to spend Christmas-listening to a lot of complaints and kicks from every woman who owns a telephone. I wish they'd leave their phones alone on Christmas day, then we telephone girls

"But they couldn't do it if they tried."

"You bet they couldn't, Why, last

What She Puts Up With

Trials of the Girl at Central The telephone girl is not chosen from every applicant who comes to offer her She must have good health, services. She must have good health, good sight, good hearing, and, most important of all, a good temper.

These girls show extraordinary courage at times. When emergencies arise, they are quick to do their share in saving life and property. People fail to appreciate either the difficulty of the telephone girl's position, or the tact and patience with which she fills it. She is the butt of everyone's ill humor. If things don't go right in the office or the cock burns your best luncheon cloth, or something else happens, the telephone girl gets the full benefit of the anger incurred. The first call a certain type of person happens first call a certain type of person happens to make, and does not get, or has to wait for, sometimes brings down a torrent of

Her Career

A girl who is anxious to choose the right career for herself writes: Dear Ellen Adair-I have read your articles on the telephone girl and have decided it slart work as a telephone operator myself, am anxious to choose the best career, an think that this one afters good chances, have enjoyed reading all about the work.

M. G. S.

Lansdowne Operator Establishes Record

Since last March Miss Marion Thorne, operator-in-charge at the Lansdowne Central office, has turned in to the business office suggestion slips from which Hol? worth of new business has been secured. This is the record amount of revenue ever secured by suggestion slips from one employe.

say. Deliver me from women. Give me the grouchlest grouch among men in preference to one sweet lady."
"Goodness," said an outsider, "surely they're not so bad as all that."
"You just work at this end of the wirs for a while and you'll say they're worss." remarked the telephone girl, as she shoved the plug in with a jerk.

A Lover of Justice

The following letter has been received; Dear Ellen Adnir-Some people have an idea list telephone girls are lazy about answering salls. I am a telephone operator, and think that if people only knew how busy I am they would not noke statements about laziness. I wish you would write an article showing them that the telephone girl is far from lazy.

All sensible people realize that the

All sensible people realize that the telephone operator is a very busy person. I have dealt with this question in the article on the Bell Telephone Com-

Bits About Bread

Bread is the staff of life; butter figures prominently at every meal. Considering their vast importance in our staple diet. it is astounding to realize how much of both is wasted through carelessness.

This waste is largely a question of cutting. Every one knows that a fowl or a joint will go "twice as far" if an efficient carver is at the head of the table instead of an inexperienced helper who shashes at whatever is before him with mingled helplaness and five and five and the content of the state of shaftes at whatever is before him with mingled helplessness and fury. And this holds true of other things. The old saying might well be adapted to housewives: "By their carving ye shall know them." Perhaps there is gore waste in bread than in any other foodstuff. We commonly waste the crust off dry toast, the last, if not the first, crust off most of our loaves, a large proportion of the bread that is placed by each person at dinner, all odd pleces cut at table.

All these, except the broken and dinner, an odd pieces cut at table.

All these, except the broken and crumpled pieces off the dinner table, can be made up again as bread crumbs, browned or white, as fried bread with soup or hacon, as sweet puddings, as atuffing, in thick soups, and many other uses.

But why have bits? After all, prevention is better than cure. Every bit was part of a frash loar a day or so ago. Why was it not saten in its frash state to save both the baker's bill and the trouble avenue of maintail the avenue of maintail the core again. ble and expense of making it over again; why cut the crust off the loast or place slices of bread round the table before finding out who eats it, or why start on a piece of bread without finishing it, or cut more than is wanted? Way, above all, leave bread at dinnertime when still hungry enough to eat pudding?

For butter is both eaten to waste and wasted unesten. An ounce of butter a day is a very suitable allowance for a person who has not much fat of other kinds, but there is no need for butter with jam, or marmaiade, bacon or fried eggs, or with cheese and biscuits after a food ment. A little attention to brend and butter cutting is amply repaid; we all know "Fittle dreps of water make the mighty occan," but do we aufficiently apply the principle to the little savings that make the family supply?

Nuts

Each kind the finest quality-carefully selected, assorted and packed in five-pound A very choice mixture of hard candica in five-pound boxes, $1.15 each, 25c a pound.

E. Bradford Clarke Co.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS THIS YEAR? Two girls were sitting in the window sast of their bedroom. They both had pads upon their knees, and they were probabling at each other. "I'm stuck, Dora; what in the world will we give mother?" asked one. "And I don't know what to give the cook, either," said the other. "Oh, you can give the cook any old things. She has so little, poor soul, Gloves beginned with aunt Jane," said little Mrs. Perience with Aunt Jane," said little Mrs. Perience with Aunt Jane," said little Mrs. Balch, bustling into a friend's library in brains like Mrs. Balch to know what to the smallest of capotes and the most beunderwear, a sweater-any serviceable article will do for her. But mother has averything she needs. She has clothes snough. I thought of getting her a nice ruffled skirts of fashion's latest decree. "Aunt Jane usually supplies us with comic opera; what is her latest exploit?" "Well. I don't think she really needs that. She has so many of them. Why not give her a pair of full-length white kid gloves?"

"I was helping her to tie up her last year's Christmas presents to do duty this year, 'pussovers' she calls them, when she suddenly seized upon a dainty belat's a good suggestion. But what Everybody's been asking me what ribboned parcel, crying out, 'Oh Polly, don't send that to Edith from her affecto give her."
"I'll tell you. Those Martha Washington sewing tables are awfully smart. And the tea-wagons and muffin stands in mahogany are lovely. We could buy one of tham between us. I know mother would just love it in her room."
"Yas, and the new honbon dishes are lovely. You can get them in colored china. I saw one the other day, and it was the pretitest thing, it was about air tionate Aunt Jane, that is the very pir cushion that Edith sent me last year! "Aunt Jane's quick wit saved the sit-

"Well, it's a time-honored fashion now, why call it by hard names? I am just now cudgelling my brains to know what to give Mrs. Lorrimer-Jones this year.

The shades come in rose slik to match he room. And the rose brocaded dresser will are stunning, and awfully reasonable.
We'll go down together this afternoon and settle this question. I'm just tired act racking my brains about it."

a good time to drop our formal giving of Christmas presents, send our friends a of Christmas presents, send our friends a card and use our money for those who need our help. Our own people are in great need as well as those abroad. So many men, and women, too, are out of work. From the typewriter and dress-maker's assistant to the scrub woman in husiness offices, hundreds of wemen are laid off, and these sorely need a helping hand to tide them over the hard winter menths. A good plan has been hit upon in Philadelphia and other cities, which is to have the garments to be sent abroad made by our own poor women. They are deing this in our little church sewing society, and we have pledged ourselves to give no present coating more than if to the save crochet cotton.... If a construction of issues of allers dollar, No. frings from both ends of towel and Eut towel lengthwise into thirds lengthwise into thirds lengthwise into thirds lengthwise into thirds all around Fasten orothes out all around Fasten orothes out a corner of one and and chain is mail inch from starting point. The money thus saved is to be spent in giving out work to poor women and in giving out work to poor women and in giving out work to poor women and in giving out work to be spent in giving out work to paor women and in giving out work to be spent in giving out work to paor women and in giving out work to be spent in giving out work to paor women and in giving out work to be spent in giving out work to paor women and in giving out work to be spent in g s convenience is for heaping the in plane when putting on one's it made as follows:

"Un the confracy, I think that if once fairly tried, this practical experiment may incontrate a new one in Christmas giring."

"Un the confracy, I think that if once fairly tried, this practical experiment may incontrate a new one in Christmas giring. You know how many people noticing of the limit of the hurden of Christmas shopping this can be a the four chair and the hurden of Christmas shopping. This is no one four fit that in ing." "On the contrary, I think that if once brains like Mrs. Balch to know what to give the Mrs. Lorrimer-Joneses of our circle, and in our efforts to find gifts appropriate to the means and stations in life of the respective recipients, are we not quite losing sight of the true spirit of Christmas? It seems as if we were smothering, under a burden of worldly cares and petry distractions, the gracious uation that time," said Mrs. Hubbard, laughing. "Do you realize, Polly, how we have commercialized Christmas since the exchange of presents has become a fashton?"

WHERE SHALL WE SEND OUR

china. I saw one the other day, and it was the prettiest thing. It was about six tuches high, and had two lovely children bolding up the bowl of the dish. They had the sweetest flowered dresses on, and their faces and hair were perfectly beautiful. We could fill it with bonbons and it would look charming."

Well, Fill tell you what we'll do. We can go down town and look at all these things, and decide which one we like best incidentally, we'll see how our money leasts. I thought of a boudoir lamp with the Dresden figures upholding it, too. The shades come in rose silk to match She has everything under the shining sun!"

"Why give Mrs. Lorrimer-Jones any-thing but a card or a few flowers with your good wishes? Such a gift would show that you had thought of her with interest and affection, which is what our Christmas gifts should stand for."

"Oh, yes, that is all very well, but Mrs. Lorrimer-Jones always sends me such perfectly beautiful and handsome gifts. I must give her something worth while, and yet Harry says that we need to retrench this year on account of the financial depression, and I naturally want to help Mrs. Stuyvesant's Red Cross Committee, which will be sending off a box soon for the wounded in France and Reistum" "Yes, that is why I think that this is fellowship and the helpful outreach of sympathy that belong to our common heritage in this great festival of the Christian year. How generously our people are giving of their money and their precious time, we all know. The Red Cross is daily sending of boxes filled with comforts for the wounded and sick, the consulates in our cities are speeding on garments by hundreds to meet the needs of the homeless and penniless refugees. The Christmas ships that sailed last month were richly freighted with useful gifts for the orphans of the war. American children contributions in addignt in addignt their contributions in felight in adding their contributions to the cargo that shall bring comfort and Christmas cheer to many a devastated home. Much has been done, more will be required, as the needs of the widows and orphans of the war are increasing rather than growing less. Refugees from Belgium have crowded into England, and some have come to our own shores. In both of these countries they may be the wards of the nation for months, probably until their restoration to their own land in the final adjustment. The sorrows of this thrifty, hard-working people, sudden-ly deprived of their homes, their farms and the occupations upon which they de-pended for a living, strongly appeal to the more fortunate nations, and they need all the help that we can give them. With a large part of the civilized world engaged in the most destructive war of history, those who think seriously cannot book forward to the festival of Christmas with the joyous spirit that belongs to days of peace and plenty. Like the ex-lies of Israel, who cried out in that meet impassioned song of Hebrew patriotism, "How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?" we shall be asking our-selves. "How shall we sing the angels' Christmas song of peace and good-will to man with the burden of warring nations. men with the burden of warring nations upon our hearts?" Surely our only answer to this question, our only colace, shall be found in pouring oil and balm into the wounds of those who suffer for the sins and the sorrows of their people.

A Last Minute

Christmas Suggestion Did you ever think of making a must for a Christmas present? Musse, were never so fashionable as they are this season, with the tiny styles, which bare-ly cover the hands, and the huge, barrel variety. Combinations of all kinds are seen, inclinding satin and fur, velves and fur, two kinds of fur, etc. This allows the dever woman a chance to show her logenuity.

A good idea is to mater the suit or first that your friend is wearing this season. She will appreciate the thought immented by This is really not so expensive as it sounds. A foundation must can be bought, at made with sitter that you brown saths, prefitty shirved, and ready for the force will be listing can be pought for $1.00. To make the similar can be pought for $1.00. To make the shall be pought for $1.00.

A good iden to to match the suit or fure for the making.

carfare and a handkerchief and button

HELPS FOR THE HOME NURSE

efficient, and efficiency includes a great deal. A few of the following hints may lows to trouble the patient.

If the bed is very low, and the patient is in a more or less helpless condition. the nurse will find it most back-breaking delirious person from jumping or falling work to have to bend over the patient out of bed.

Now a simple device that will cost mere- either side. ly a trifle can remedy matters in a case like this. Four blocks of wood should be obtained (or even four thick books of equal size with rough covers), and these should be placed under the legs of the

They should be hollowed a little in the middle, then castors on the legs need not be removed, as the hollows will hold them It must be remembered that raising the bed in this way will prevent its being able to be moved about, so it must be conveniently placed before the blocks are fixed under the legs. THE BEST KIND OF BED.

bed.

A big double bed has only one advantage—the sick person can lie on one side of it at might, and on the other in the day.

But this is not enough of an advantage to counterbalance its great inconvenience during the nursing of serious ill-

To do all these things the nurse should be at the side of the bod, and not on it, as she tony have to be if it le a very high and wide one. Therefore, it is much better to get the big bed out of the room for the time being, even if you have to take commiscrable tremble to get 71d or 11.

ot requiring the sick person to sit up.

The home nurse is often hampered by filled too full of it, but just full enough

POSITION OF THE BED. wall, unless it is placed so purposely for a time to assist in keeping a restless or that the patient can be attneded to at If possible, the bed should not face the

th and purify the room.

Recovery from liness is often delayed because of the old-fashloned notion that the sick room should be a dark one

Pretty Arms

THE BEST KIND OF BED.

For illness the best kind of bed is a single-arised fron bedatead, about 40 inches in width, and when the mattress is on about 34 inches in height.

A feather bed should never be used in illness. It is heating, and if not shaken up every day will gather into most uncomfortable lumps and hollows.

If possible, don't murse in a big double bed.

A big double bed has only one advantage—the sick person can lie on our side of it at might, and on the other in the day.

But this is not smough of an advantage—the sick person can lie on our lie or lord lie or lie or any nothing of acquiring one.

Tonnis, hearing lord arm: there are arms tree stor stout in the sample, there is the sample, the street arm, there are arms tor stor stout in the sample, the street is the sure is the sample, which is perhaps, the most individual lines are in least ling are in lie or arm is the sample, which is perhaps, the most our lie or all. Exercise is the only reliable beautifier for the daveloped arm: there are arms tor store in developed arm: there are arms tor store in developed arm: there are arms tor store lie the sample, under lie or arm in shapely unattractive of all. E

But this is not amough of an advantage to counterbalance its great inconvenience during the nursing of serious illances. Its parient is in a very high, wide had the nurse cannot with comfort to her patient or herself do such things as give a blanket bath, position, tandege, raise, allanket bath, position, and sheets without resources a lightgown and sheets without resources in introduced submutaneous out resourcing the sick person to sit up.

preffy erm. Busides being shapely, her erms must be soft and white. Butter-salls is an excellent whitener for the arms her lack of experience. Often things happen unexpectedly, a patient is brought home and the amateur nurse is called upon to handle a case she never dealt with before. The great point is to be efficient, and efficiency includes a great following the first control of it, but just full enough to be firm and comfortable.

After use the chaff is emptied out and burned, and the case thoroughly boiled.
Thus all risk of infection is prevented, and the trouble of complicated disinfecting avoided.

These chaff beds are very comfortable for lie of it, but just full enough to be firm and comfortable.

Don't place it with one side against the constantly, when washing, lifting or turn- For all other cases it should stand so window, unless in convalescence.

If the bed faces the window during illness, it will often be necessary to keep the blind down when it might be raised, allowing the life-giving sunshine to come

The arrival of the sleeveless dance frock has brought Milady's arms into prominence again. And what a sight one sees raising the depression to the mi

excellent and comfortable and can be break and matter with a medicately

As to butter, this comes to table three times a day, and it should be, therefore, served as attractively as possible. Why therefore, bang it down into the dish in an untidy slab? Why not, as soon as it comes, take the pound or half pound and cut it first into haives, then into quarters and eighths—smaller if necessary—before cutting it croaswiss to form neat little squares? These individual squares not only look nicer, but supply the wants of the family very economically.

and a good meat.

buxes. $1,35 such. 28c a pound. Fruit Baskets Packed to Order

1520 Chestnut Street Personne